Lifestyle Newborn
Session Guide

Welcome

There are few other times in life that are as fleeting as your baby's first days, and there's no better way to capture this time than with an in-home newborn photo session.

Sessions are designed to take place in your home, at your pace, recording this new life as is. Using this newborn guide and wardrobe tips will help you prepare for your baby's first photo session. Maternity and milestone sessions are also available to help you record all of your family's "firsts".

I can't wait to meet your new little one and record the new transformation of your family!

Frequent Questions

"My home isn't photo ready!"

I hear you and don't stress! It is the space you are bringing your new baby home to and that makes it the most special space. Removing clutter, such as things on tables and excess baby gear can help. Most of all though, I am here to help and coordinate ahead of time. Share your concerns with me and we will work through them!

"What about lighting?"

Low lighting is an issue in every home. I'm prepared, so don't worry. We will try our best to schedule your session when your home gets the most light, usually mid-morning. Opening all the drapes and blinds will help, and I can usually find a spot that will work!

"What should I wear?"

You can reference my more in depth wardrobe guide for some essential tips on what photographs well, but most importantly - dress yourself first and then coordinate the rest of the family. A simple white onesie works really well for newborns. Just have a backup outfit ready just in case!

Frequent Questions

“How can I best prepare my newborn?”

Babies don't adhere to a schedule, but there are some things that will help. A bath and a good feeding right before I arrive can wear your little one out and help he/she stay sleepy and cooperative. Making the rooms where we will be warm will also help your little one stay comfortable.

“When should I schedule photos?”

If you're just trying to document you and your new family than it truly does not matter when. If you want sleepy newborn photos, than sometime within the first 10 days is usually best.
